OVERVIEW OF FEDERAL RESOURCES

1.1 Resource mobilization is essential to meet the recurring as well as development expenditures. At the Federal level, resources are generated through a well-coordinated and concerted effort by the revenue collecting agencies and administrative units. All revenues collected by the collecting agencies and administrative divisions of the Federal Government, all loans raised, and all moneys received as repayments of loans form part of the Federal Consolidated Fund. Besides, all other money received by or on behalf of the Federal Government or received or deposited with the Supreme Court or any other court established under the authority of the Federation are part of the Public Account of the Federation in terms of Article 78(1) and (2) of the Constitution of Islamic Republic of Pakistan. All revenue receipts are part of the Annual Budget Statement (ABS), which is presented before the National Assembly in terms of Article 80 of the Constitution.

1.2 Federal Revenue Receipts are broadly categorized as :-

(I) Tax Revenue (TR)

(II) Non-Tax Revenue (NTR)

1.3 Tax Revenue receipts are collected by the Federal Board of Revenue and are distributed amongst provinces in accordance with the provisions of Article 160 of the Constitution. Non-Tax Revenue is the revenue received by the Government in terms of Article 78(1) of the Constitution and the recurring income of the government from investments and provision of services but does not include those mentioned in Article 160(3) of the Constitution.

1.4 In addition to the revenue receipts, there are Capital Receipts reflected in Annual Budget Statement. Capital Receipts comprise of recoveries of loans and advances from provincial governments, local bodies, financial institutions etc. as well as Public Debt raised through various government securities. The former is part of Federal Consolidated Fund while Saving Schemes and net receipts from transactions under Deposits and Reserves form part of Public Account of the Federation.

Clause 4.1 of Section II of the said policy provides that royalty will be payable at the rate of 12.5% of the value of petroleum at the field gate. The royalty will be paid by the Federal Government to Provinces to the extent of their share of liquid and gaseous hydrocarbons (such as LPG, NGL, Solvent oil, gasoline and others) as well as all substances including sulphur, produced in association with such hydrocarbon. The lease rent paid during the year shall not be deductible from the royalty payment. A 10% of the royalty will be utilized in the district where oil and gas is produced for infrastructure development.

E&P companies sell the crude oil to refineries at the rate prevailing in the international market based on the formula as per PCA. Under various agreements, E&P companies agree to sell the crude oil to refineries at different discounted rate on attainment of certain milestones as per PCA. The amount of discount is retained by the refineries while making payment of crude oil to E&P companies and deposited in Government head of account.

4.6.5.6 Windfall Levy on Crude Oil & Natural Gas

4.6.5.6.1 As per Petroleum Exploration & Production Policy 2012, Windfall Levy (WLO) will be applicable on crude oil and condensate using the formula i.e WLO = 0.4 x (M-R) x (P-B) Where: WLO = Windfall Levy on crude oil and condensate; M = Net production (petroleum produced & saved); R = Royalty; P = Market Price of crude oil and condensate; and B = Base Price. All the benefit of windfall levy may be equally divided between the Federal Government and Provincial Government concerned.

FEDERAL BUDGET

PERFORMANCE
BASED BUDGET
2026-27 — 2028-29

GOVERNMENT OF PAKISTAN
FINANCE DIVISION
ISLAMABAD

Preface

This document has been prepared to comply with the requirement laid down in Section 9 of Public Finance Management Act, 2019. The medium-term Performance Based Budget which is referred to as the "Green Book" is an endeavor to specify the purposes i.e. outputs and outcomes expected to be achieved with funds appropriated by the National Assembly. The Green Book provides supplementary information to the details of Demands for Grants and Appropriations, which set out the details of the Budget by accounting Budget line according to the functional and object classifications of the Chart of Accounts. The key elements of Green Book are:

Three-year framework for budgetary planning which lies at the heart of the Medium- Term Budgetary Framework (MTBF) reforms. Under this process Principal Accounting Officers (PAOs) make their plans and prepare budgetary estimates for a rolling 3-year budgetary horizon. This includes the 2026-27 estimates, which are to be appropriated by The National Assembly, and two outer years' estimates FYs 2027-28 and 2028-29 for planning purposes.

Breakdown of each PAO's Budget by "Outputs". Each PAO identifies its main lines of service delivery and the costs associated with the delivery of each service, down to the level of the individual spending unit. This would enable National Assembly and other stakeholders to assess whether value for money in terms of delivery of services is being achieved.

Linkage of service delivery with total budgetary allocations for each PAO (current and development). As the government budget is divided between the recurrent budget and development budget, the delivery of outputs and outcomes requires combine allocation of recurrent and development budget to access the services or improvement of the future quality of public services.

Development of indicators, which should be used for measuring the quantity and quality of services (outputs) to be delivered. The Green Book also provides targets for the levels of services, which the PAOs are expecting to achieve. Budgetary preparation based on specified outputs/services, provides a basis for monitoring of the results expected from public spending.

Identification of outcomes that represent effects of service delivery on the target population. Outcomes are often more difficult to measure than outputs and are typically measured less frequently. I hope that this document would be of value in terms of describing the linkage between budgetary allocations and the public services delivered.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Tax expenditures refer to provisions within tax laws—such as exclusions, deductions, deferrals, tax credits, and preferential tax rates—that reduce the tax liability of individuals or businesses. These measures are typically introduced to encourage specific economic activities or to provide relief to targeted sectors or groups. Such provisions result in a reduction in government revenue, commonly referred to as revenue foregone, which is estimated as the difference between actual tax collections and the revenue that would have been realized under a benchmark tax system without these preferential treatments.

Tax Expenditure Reports are widely regarded as an important instrument for enhancing fiscal transparency and supporting evidence-based tax policy formulation. In Pakistan, the Tax Expenditure Report is prepared using the "revenue foregone" approach, which estimates the fiscal cost of tax concessions provided under the prevailing tax legislation, namely the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001; the Sales Tax Act, 1990; and the Customs Act, 1969. The estimates presented in this report are based on available data for Fiscal Year 2024–25. The tax-wise methodology and criteria adopted for estimating tax expenditures are described below.

Income Tax Expenditure

The estimation of income tax expenditures is based on two primary data sources: income tax returns and third-party information. The statutory tax rates prescribed under the relevant Schedules of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001, are treated as benchmark rates for the purpose of estimating deviations resulting from preferential tax provisions.

Furthermore, the scope of income tax expenditures is determined with reference to Section 9 of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001, which specifies the heads of income and applies the origin-of-income principle to both resident and non-resident taxpayers. This framework provides the basis for identifying and quantifying income tax preferences that result in revenue foregone.

Sales Tax Expenditure

Sales tax expenditures are estimated using data obtained from sales tax returns and Goods Declarations (GDs) relating to imports. The estimates are calculated as the difference between the actual amount of sales tax paid and the amount that would have been payable had the standard sales tax rate been applied. This differential represents the fiscal cost of exemptions, reduced rates, or other concessions granted under the sales tax regime.

Customs Duty Expenditure

Customs duty expenditures are estimated with reference to the relevant provisions of the Customs Act, 1969, and applicable Statutory Regulatory Orders (SROs) that grant exemptions or concessions on imported goods. The standard statutory customs duty rates applicable during FY 2024–25 are used as benchmark rates for this purpose. The value of customs duty expenditure is calculated as the difference between the duty payable at the benchmark rate and the duty actually collected under the applicable concessionary or exempted treatment.

Important Considerations

It is important to note that the figures presented in this report are estimates and should not be interpreted to imply that the elimination of a particular tax expenditure would result in an equivalent increase in government revenue. The actual revenue impact of withdrawing a tax exemption or concession depends on a range of economic factors, including the nature of the underlying activity, taxpayer behavioral responses (elasticities), and prevailing macroeconomic conditions.

Furthermore, the estimates presented in this report do not account for potential spillover effects of tax expenditures on provincial tax systems. Accordingly, the reported figures should be interpreted as indicative measures of revenue foregone under current policy settings, rather than as precise projections of additional revenue that would accrue in the event of policy changes.

Overview of Federal Tax Expenditures – FY 2024–25

The total Federal Tax Expenditure for the fiscal year 2024–25 is estimated at Rs. 2,352.81 billion.

- Equivalent to 20.04% of the Federal Board of Revenue's total tax collection (FBR Collection FY 2024-25: Rs. 11,744.30 billion)
- Equivalent to 2.07% of the country's Gross Domestic Product (GDP) (GDP Nominal FY 2024-25: Rs. 113,934.97 billion)

This figure reflects the revenue foregone by the government due to tax exemptions, concessions, and preferential treatments that represent genuine departures from the benchmark tax system as defined in Section 2.3 of this report. The detailed breakdown by tax head is as

a. Income Tax

- Estimated Expenditure: Rs. 579.70 billion
- Equivalent to:
  - 4.94% of the FBR's total tax collection
  - 24.6% of the overall tax expenditure
  - 0.51% of the country's Gross Domestic Product (GDP)

b. Sales Tax

- Estimated Expenditure: Rs. 1,273.98 billion
- Equivalent to:
  - 10.85% of FBR's total collection
  - 54.1% of the total tax expenditure
  - 1.12% of GDP

c. Customs Duty

- Estimated Expenditure: Rs. 499.14 billion
- Equivalent to:
  - 4.25% of FBR's total tax collection
  - 21.3% of the overall tax expenditure
  - 0.44% of GDP

Key Observations

- The total federal tax expenditure constitutes 20.04% of FBR's total tax collection for FY 2024-25, a decrease from 26.18% recorded in the previous fiscal year (FY 2023-24). The decline reflects the application of a refined benchmark methodology, consistent with international best practice, that more precisely defines the boundary between structural features of the tax system and policy-driven departures from it. The methodology is set out in full in Appendix E of this report.
- In terms of economic size, the total tax expenditure represents 2.07% of GDP during FY 2024-25, compared to 2.32% of GDP in the previous fiscal year, positioning Pakistan broadly in line with the lower range of comparable developing economies whose average stands at 2.31% (Global Tax Expenditure Database, 2025).

INTRODUCTION

1.1. Definition

Tax expenditures have been defined in various ways by international institutions and legislative frameworks. Despite differences in wording, these definitions share a common understanding that tax expenditures represent deviations from a benchmark tax system introduced to promote specific economic activities or policy objectives. Some widely recognized definitions are presented below:

- The Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974 (CBA) in the United States defines tax expenditures as:
  "Those revenue losses attributable to provisions of the Federal tax laws which allow a special credit, a preferential rate of tax, or a deferral of tax liability."
- The International Monetary Fund (IMF) describes tax expenditure as:
  "Revenue foregone as a result of selective provisions in the tax code."
- The Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) defines tax expenditures as:
  "The estimated costs to the tax revenue of preferential treatment for specific activities."

Although these definitions vary in formulation, they consistently emphasize that tax expenditures represent departures from a neutral, standard tax structure and result in reduced government revenue arising from selective policy choices. This report adopts a broad approach to tax expenditure identification, consistent with the practice of the International Monetary Fund and the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, under which measures are reported if they depart from the benchmark tax system as defined in Section 2.3 of this report. A measure that forms part of the structural design of the benchmark tax system, including constitutional arrangements, provisions that prevent double taxation, and obligations arising from international agreements to which Pakistan is a party, does not constitute a tax expenditure, regardless of its revenue impact.

Forms of Tax Expenditures in Pakistan

Under Pakistan's prevailing tax laws, tax expenditures or concessions are provided through several instruments, including:

- Allowances – Amounts deducted from a taxpayer's income prior to the application of the applicable tax rate, thereby reducing the taxable base.
- Tax Credits – Direct reductions in the tax liability of the taxpayer, often used to incentivize specific behaviors or investments.
- Tax Exemptions – Complete exclusions of certain income, transactions, or entities from the scope of taxation.
- Tax Rate Relief – Application of lower-than-standard tax rates to specific types of income, goods, or taxpayers.

These mechanisms are used to facilitate targeted economic activities, attract investment, support priority sectors, and provide relief to particular groups. While such measures may serve important policy objectives, tax expenditures also reduce the overall revenue potential of the tax system and therefore require careful evaluation prior to their introduction and continuation.

1.2. Tax Expenditure V/s Benchmark Tax System

Tax expenditures are determined with reference to a benchmark tax system, which is defined as the existing tax structure in its most fundamental form: the structural elements, rates, and provisions that constitute the core design of the tax system as established by the applicable statute. Internationally, this approach, adopted by the IMF, the OECD, and an increasing number of country authorities, treats as benchmark those features of the tax system that apply universally, that serve structural rather than preferential purposes, or that are required under the constitutional or treaty framework within which the tax system operates. Only departures from this benchmark that represent targeted policy preferences in favour of specific taxpayers, transactions, sectors, or activities are classified as tax expenditures.

Accordingly, any departure from this benchmark—whether provided through the main body of the law, prescribed in schedules, or granted via Statutory Regulatory Orders (SROs)—is classified as a tax expenditure. This includes exemptions, deductions, preferential rates, deferrals, and credits that confer a benefit on a specific class of taxpayers or transactions and are not otherwise required by the constitutional, statutory, or treaty architecture of the tax system. A comprehensive list of provisions excluded from expenditure classification on benchmark grounds is set out in Appendix C of this report.

In essence, tax expenditures represent the revenue foregone arising from deviations from the benchmark tax system, including exemptions, deductions, preferential tax rates, deferrals, and tax credits that would not exist under a neutral tax structure. Such measures result in favorable tax treatment for specific income, transactions, or taxpayers, thereby departing from the principle of uniform taxation under normal circumstances.

1.3. Pros and Cons of Tax Expenditure

Tax expenditure serves as an important instrument of fiscal policy and can offer several advantages for economic development. They are commonly used to stimulate investment, encourage private sector participation, and support the growth of emerging or financially constrained industries. When appropriately designed and implemented, tax incentives can contribute to economic growth by promoting capital formation, generating employment opportunities, and enhancing overall economic activity. Such measures are particularly relevant for sectors or regions that require targeted policy support to achieve sustainable development. In addition, the publication of the Tax Expenditure Report provides a valuable reference for researchers and development analysts, facilitating further empirical and analytical work in the field of public finance.

At the same time, tax expenditures entail certain disadvantages. The most significant concern relates to the erosion of the tax base and the associated loss of government revenue. As fiscal resources are foregone through preferential tax treatment, the government may face constraints in meeting its expenditure requirements, potentially resulting in budgetary pressures or the need to increase taxation in other areas. Furthermore, poorly designed tax incentives may lead to inefficient allocation of resources, as economic agents may respond primarily to tax advantages rather than underlying productivity or long-term economic efficiency. Tax expenditures may also contribute to distributional imbalances, as their benefits are often concentrated among better-positioned firms or individuals, while disadvantaged groups may derive limited benefit.

Empirical studies further indicate that tax incentives are not typically the primary determinant of investment decisions. Instead, factors such as political stability, quality of infrastructure, law and order conditions, and market size tend to carry greater weight in investors' decision-making processes. Consequently, while tax expenditures may influence specific economic behaviors, their overall effectiveness may be more limited than anticipated in policy design.

1.4. Tax Expenditure Reporting under the Public Finance Management Act 2019

The Public Finance Management Act, 2019 requires the presentation of a statement of estimated tax expenditures to Parliament on an annual basis. This statement is incorporated into the Finance Bill presented each year. The requirement constitutes an important component of transparent and accountable fiscal management, ensuring that information on revenue foregone through tax expenditures is formally reported and subjected to legislative scrutiny.

SCOPE & METHODOLOGY

2.1. Scope of Tax Expenditure Estimates

The tax expenditure estimates presented in this report cover Income Tax, Sales Tax, and Customs Duty, based on data for Fiscal Year 2024–25. Federal Excise Duty (FED) has been excluded from the scope of this report, as it is imposed on a limited range of specified goods and services and does not fall within the conventional definition of tax expenditures.

Unlike broad-based tax systems that incorporate exemptions, exclusions, credits, and allowances, FED operates as a targeted levy applied to clearly defined goods and services. It is not structured to provide generalized concessional treatments or preferential tax regimes. Accordingly, it is not considered within the ambit of tax expenditure analysis presented in this report.

2.2. Methodology for Estimating Tax Expenditure:

Revenue Foregone Approach

The tax expenditure estimates presented in this report are derived using the "revenue foregone" approach. This methodology quantifies the revenue loss arising from specific tax provisions—such as exemptions, deductions, or reduced tax rates—that deviate from the benchmark tax system. Accordingly, tax expenditure is measured as the difference between the tax liability that would have been payable under statutory rates and the actual tax collected, representing the amount of revenue foregone.

For the purpose of providing a comprehensive analytical framework and enabling meaningful comparisons, nominal values of key macroeconomic indicators are used throughout the report. These include Gross Domestic Product (GDP), Large-Scale Manufacturing (LSM) growth, and other relevant economic variables.

2.3. Tax Benchmarks Defined by Key Tax Laws

The benchmark tax systems defined for the purpose of this report are grounded in the fundamental structure of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 (ITO, 2001), the Sales Tax Act, 1990 (STA, 1990), and the Customs Act, 1969. For each tax, the benchmark is characterized by only the most fundamental aspects of the tax system, the unit of taxation, the taxation period, the base, and the rate structure, together with those structural elements that are constitutionally required, internationally obligated, or necessary to prevent double taxation. Provisions that define the outer limits of these elements are not tax expenditures. The benchmark systems for each of these taxes are defined in the sections that follow, and a consolidated summary of their key features is set out in Appendix E of this report.

The benchmark systems for each of these taxes are outlined in greater detail below:

2.3.1. Benchmark for Estimating Income Tax Expenditure

The benchmark for estimating income tax expenditure reflects the tax system as it would apply in the absence of targeted preferences, but including all structural features that are constitutionally grounded, internationally required, or necessary to define a coherent income tax. The principal structural elements of the income tax benchmark are set out below.

2.3.1.1. Unit of Taxation for Income Tax

The unit of taxation under the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 is the "person". As defined in the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001, the term "person" includes a broad range of entities such as individuals, companies, Association of Persons (AOPs), and other legal entities. Each of these entities is subject to income tax in accordance with its respective taxable income, as determined under the provisions of the law.

Key Definitions Under Income Tax Ordinance (ITO), 2001

a. Taxable Income

As defined in Section 9 of the Income Tax Ordinance (ITO), 2001, taxable income includes various sources of income, such as:

- Salary
- Income from property
- Income from business
- Capital gains

- Income from other sources

These categories collectively form the basis for determining the amount of income that is subject to tax under the law.

b. Resident and Non-Resident Person

A person shall be a resident person for a tax year if the person is a resident individual, resident company or resident association of persons for the year; or the Federal Government. A person shall be a non-resident for a tax year if the person is not a resident person for that year. An individual shall be a resident individual for a tax year if the individual is present in Pakistan for a period of, or periods amounting in aggregate to, one hundred and eighty-three days or more in the tax year or is an employee or official of the Federal Government or a Provincial Government posted abroad in the tax year.

c. Foreign Tax Credit

To prevent double taxation on income earned abroad, a foreign tax credit is allowed under the provisions of the ITO-2001. This means that taxes paid to foreign governments on income generated outside Pakistan can be credited against the tax liability in Pakistan. However, if no foreign tax is paid on income earned abroad, that income is considered taxable in Pakistan, as per Section 103 of the ITO-2001. Foreign Tax Credits are excluded from the expenditure estimates in this report.

2.3.1.2. Taxation Period

a. Tax Year

As defined under Clause 2(68) of the Income Tax Ordinance (ITO), 2001, the term "Tax Year" refers to the financial year, which begins on 1st July and ends on 30th June of the following year. Income is assessed and taxed on an accrual basis, meaning it is taxed in the year it is earned, regardless of when it is received.

b. Applicable Tax Year for This Report

For the purpose of estimating Income Tax Expenditure in this report, the relevant tax year considered is 2024–25.

2.3.1.3. Benchmark Tax Rates for Estimating Income Tax Expenditure

a. Standard Benchmark Rates (Schedule-1)

For estimating income tax expenditure, the benchmark tax rates are those prescribed in Schedule-1 of the Income Tax Ordinance (ITO), 2001. These rates are treated as the standard for comparison. Any concessions or variations within Schedule-1 itself are not treated as deviations from the benchmark and are therefore not considered tax expenditures.

b. Special Benchmark Rates and Exemption Comparisons

- For entities declaring losses, the minimum tax rate of 1.25% is applied, in accordance with Section 113 of the ITO, 2001.
- For individual taxpayers, applicable rates are listed in Schedule-1.
- Exemptions on export income are evaluated against a benchmark tax rate of 1%.

c. Corporate Benchmark Rates

- A benchmark rate of 39% is applied for banking companies.
- For all other non-banking companies, including small and medium enterprises (SMEs) and other incorporated entities, an average corporate tax rate of 24.5% is used as the benchmark.

2.3.1.4. Tax Base and Structural Exclusions from the Income Tax Benchmark

The benchmark income tax base comprises income derived from all sources by resident and non-resident persons as specified in Section 9 of the ITO, 2001, subject to the following structural exclusions that form part of the benchmark rather than departures from it:

(a) Government income: Section 49 of the ITO, 2001, provides that the income of the Federal Government is exempt from income tax. The income of a Provincial Government or Local Government is similarly exempt, except for income from business carried on outside its jurisdictional area. This provision reflects the constitutional principle that the sovereign does not tax itself. Accordingly, the revenue attributable to Section 49 is not classified as a tax expenditure in this report; it represents a structural feature of the income tax system and forms part of the benchmark.

(b) Avoidance of double taxation: Measures that prevent the same economic value from being taxed more than once are part of the benchmark income tax system. These include the exemption of inter-corporate dividends within group taxation arrangements under Section 59AA, and foreign tax credits available under Section 103 of the ITO, 2001. Such provisions do not represent preferential treatment; they reflect the principle that a single item of income should be subject to tax only once.

(c) Constitutional arrangements: Income that falls outside the fiscal jurisdiction of the Federal Government by operation of the Constitution of Pakistan, 1973, does not form part of the benchmark federal income tax base. Agricultural income, assigned to the provinces under the constitutional division of legislative powers, is accordingly excluded. Income arising in territories to which federal tax law applied for the first time following the Constitution (Twenty-fifth Amendment) Act, 2018, is subject to transitional arrangements that are constitutionally mandated rather than discretionary; the revenue foregone during such transition periods is not classified as a tax expenditure.

(d) International obligations: Exemptions required under bilateral or multilateral agreements to which Pakistan is a signatory, including agreements with the United Nations, diplomatic conventions under the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations, and obligations undertaken in the context of foreign development assistance, are not classified as tax expenditures. These are listed in Appendix C of this report.

2.3.1.5. Treatment of Procedural Clauses for Estimating Tax Expenditure

Certain provisions in the Income Tax Ordinance (ITO), 2001—referred to as procedural clauses—offer exemptions from withholding tax requirements for specific categories of taxpayers or transactions. These exemptions are typically granted in cases where an alternative mechanism already exists within the tax structure to ensure that the tax liability is ultimately fulfilled. In addition, any provision that exempts a person only from the withholding tax mechanism under Part III or Part IV of the Second Schedule, where the person remains fully liable to income tax at the applicable rate and that liability is discharged through the return-filing process, is not treated as a tax expenditure. A comprehensive list of such clauses is provided in Appendix D.

List of procedural clauses that were not treated as tax expenditures due to their deferred nature and eventual tax collection has been provided in Appendix D of this report.

2.3.1.6. Exclusions from Tax Expenditure Estimation

Certain concessions and exemptions are treated as structural elements of the tax base or are granted in compliance with international obligations. Such provisions are not regarded as deviations from the benchmark tax system and are therefore excluded from the estimation of tax expenditures in this report.

Examples of such exclusions include:

- The minimum income threshold, below which individuals are not subject to tax
- Exemptions on inter-corporate dividends, aimed at avoiding double taxation within corporate groups
- Agricultural income, which falls outside the scope of federal income taxation as per the Constitution of Pakistan
- Concessions granted to diplomats and foreign missions
- Tax exemptions for United Nations agencies and other international organizations
- Expenditures resulting from Free Trade Agreements (FTAs), Preferential Trade Agreements (PTAs), and other bilateral or multilateral treaties

These exclusions are considered integral to the structural design of the tax system or are required under international commitments; accordingly, they do not fall within the scope of tax expenditure estimates.

A comprehensive list of all such clauses, sections, and statutory provisions excluded from tax expenditure estimation is provided in Appendix C of this report.

2.3.1.7. Entitlement under Multiple Provisions

Section 49 of the ITO, 2001, provides that the income of the Federal Government is exempt from income tax under the Ordinance, and that the income of a Provincial Government or a Local Government is exempt except where such income is derived from a business carried on outside its jurisdictional area. This provision reflects the fundamental constitutional principle that the sovereign authority does not tax its own income, a principle recognized in comparable form in the tax systems of all major economies. In Canada, for example, the constitutional immunity of federal and provincial governments from mutual taxation is explicitly designated as part of the benchmark income tax system.

For the purposes of this report, the income attributable to Section 49 of the ITO, 2001, constitutes part of the benchmark tax system. It is not classified as a tax expenditure and is not included in the expenditure estimates. The same principle extends to statutory bodies and funds that are established by federal or provincial legislation, operate without private shareholders, and whose assets and income flow directly to public sector employees or federal and provincial budgets. The income of such entities, including provincially-legislated pension funds, employees' social security institutions, and government-directed infrastructure funds, is treated as an extension of sovereign income for the purpose of benchmark determination.

2.3.1.8. Income of Federal, Provincial or Local Government under section 49 of ITO, 2001

The treatment of income exempt under Section 49 of the ITO, 2001 — including the income of the Federal Government, Provincial Governments, Local Governments, and the statutory bodies and funds described in the preceding sub-section — as part of the benchmark tax system is set out in Section 2.3.1.4 and in Appendix E of this report. Such income is not classified as a tax expenditure.

2.3.2. Benchmark for Sales Tax Expenditure

The characteristics of the benchmark used for estimating sales tax expenditures are outlined as follows:

2.3.2.1. Unit of Taxation

A registered person making a taxable supply of goods or services in Pakistan.

2.3.2.2. Taxation Period

For estimation purposes, the sales tax expenditure is calculated with reference to Fiscal Year 2024–25. This timeframe is used as the basis for assessing and reporting the relevant tax liabilities and associated expenditures incurred within the same fiscal period.

2.3.2.3. Tax Base

The benchmark tax base for Sales Tax (ST) is founded on the "destination principle," under which tax is imposed at the point of consumption within Pakistan. Accordingly, Sales Tax is levied on goods and services consumed within the country, while exports remain outside the scope of taxation.

In line with the 18th Constitutional Amendment, the taxation of services has been devolved to the provincial level, and each province is empowered to levy Sales Tax on services within its respective jurisdiction. However, the Islamabad Capital Territory (ICT), not being part of any province, falls under the jurisdiction of the Federal Government for the taxation of services. Consequently, for the purposes of this report, the Sales Tax base comprises Sales Tax on goods consumed across Pakistan and Sales Tax on services within the Islamabad Capital Territory.

It is further noted that Sales Tax expenditure relating to services within the ICT has not been included in this report. This is due to the specific structure of the Islamabad Capital Territory (Tax on Services) Ordinance, 2001, which does not provide for exemptions, credits, or concessional treatments. The Ordinance primarily establishes minimum thresholds, while the applicable tax rates represent standard benchmark rates applied uniformly.

2.3.2.4. Structural Exclusions from the Sales Tax Benchmark

The following are structural features of the benchmark for Sales Tax and are not classified as tax expenditures:

(a) Exports and international supplies: As stated in Section 2.3.2.3, the Sales Tax benchmark operates on the destination principle, under which tax is imposed at the point of consumption within Pakistan. Accordingly, goods and services supplied for consumption outside Pakistan, including goods exported under Section 4 of the STA, 1990, and stores and provisions supplied for consumption aboard conveyances proceeding to destinations outside Pakistan under Section 4(B), are outside the benchmark tax base. Zero-rating or non-taxation of such supplies is not a tax expenditure.

(b) Financial instruments and monetary functions: Currency notes, banknotes, shares, stocks, bonds, and monetary gold are not subject to Sales Tax under the Sixth Schedule of the STA, 1990. These are financial instruments or legal tender rather than goods or services consumed in the ordinary sense; their exclusion from the Sales Tax base is a structural feature of how consumption taxation operates, not a policy preference. Their non-taxation is accordingly part of the benchmark.

(c) Constitutional transition arrangements: Supplies made in territories to which the STA, 1990, applied for the first time following the Constitution (Twenty-fifth Amendment) Act, 2018, are subject to transition arrangements that are constitutionally mandated. The revenue attributable to such transitional non-taxation is not classified as a tax expenditure.

(d) International obligations: Supplies to diplomatic missions, United Nations agencies, and privileged persons or organisations covered under agreements to which the Government of Pakistan is a party are exempt from Sales Tax consistent with Pakistan's international obligations. Consistent with the treatment of international obligations under Appendix C of this report in relation to Income Tax, such exemptions are not classified as Sales Tax expenditures.

2.3.2.5. Tax Rate

The benchmark rates for Sales Tax are the standard rates specified in the Sales Tax Act, 1990 (STA 1990). For the period under review, the standard Sales Tax rate was 18 percent.

2.3.3. Benchmark for Customs Duties

a. The statutory rates for Customs Duty (CD), Regulatory Duty (RD), and Additional Customs Duty (ACD) have been established as the benchmark rates for this analysis.

b. In the calculation process, any deviations from the statutory rates have been classified as exemptions or concessions. These deviations represent instances where the effective duty rate is different from the benchmark.

c. Period under review is the fiscal year 2024-25.

d. International trade agreements: Free Trade Agreements (FTAs) and Preferential Trade Agreements (PTAs) represent binding international treaty obligations of the Government of Pakistan. As with the treatment of international obligations under Appendix C of this report in the context of Income Tax, customs duty concessions arising from such agreements are not the result of a discretionary domestic policy preference; they are obligations that Pakistan has assumed and cannot revoke unilaterally without triggering treaty consequences. Accordingly, customs duty foregone under FTAs and PTAs is not classified as a tax expenditure in this report.

e. Exports and the customs duty base: The customs duty benchmark is premised on the taxation of goods imported for consumption within Pakistan. Goods imported as inputs and incorporated into products that are subsequently exported are not consumed within Pakistan. The remission, exemption, or drawback of customs duty on such inputs, including under the Export Facilitation Scheme and similar instruments, reflects the outer boundary of the customs duty base rather than a departure from it. Consistent with the destination principle applied in the Sales Tax benchmark, such remissions are not classified as customs duty expenditures.

f. Regulatory Duty (RD) and Additional Customs Duty (ACD): Regulatory duties and additional customs duties are instruments introduced through Statutory Regulatory Orders on a temporary basis, primarily to address balance of payments pressures, and are not permanent features of the customs duty structure. Because these levies are temporary and counter-cyclical in character, they are included in the benchmark rate structure only where they were in continuous effect throughout the fiscal year under review. Exemptions from RD and ACD that are granted for the same categories of goods and at the same time as the underlying duty notification are treated with caution; where such exemptions are effectively co-terminus with the levy itself, their inclusion in expenditure estimates is noted separately.

2.3.4. Main Types of Tax Expenditures under the Federal Tax System

On the basis of the benchmark tax system defined above, it is possible to identify the main types of tax expenditures applicable to each of the three federal taxes covered in this report. The following table sets out each type, its definition in the Pakistani context, and a representative example drawn from the estimates presented in Appendix A.

A. Income Tax Expenditures

Type of Tax Expenditure	Description	Example from ITO, 2001
Exemption from income tax	The income of a person or entity is wholly excluded from income tax, including where the person is otherwise within the scope of the ITO, 2001.	Non-profit organisations and welfare institutions approved under Section 100C are exempt from income tax on their income from voluntary contributions and qualifying activities. (Clause 66 of Part I of the Second Schedule)
Exemption from specific heads of income	Particular categories of income, though otherwise taxable, are excluded from the tax base.	Profits and gains derived from electric power generation projects established after 1 July 1988, approved under the Government's energy policy, are exempt from income tax for a specified period. (Clause 132 of Part I of the Second Schedule)
Deductible allowances	Amounts that would not otherwise be deductible from income, because they are not incurred to earn business income, are permitted as deductions, reducing the taxable base.	Contributions to approved pension funds under Section 63 of the ITO, 2001, are allowed as a deductible allowance, reducing the taxable salary of the contributing individual.
Tax credits	A direct reduction in tax liability, applied after the tax has been computed at the benchmark rate.	A tax credit is available under Section 65F in respect of qualifying investment in technology and IT-related enterprises, applied against the tax otherwise payable by the investor. (Clause 65F)
Reduced tax rates	A lower rate of tax is applied to specified income, transactions, or categories of taxpayer rather than the benchmark rate.	The rate of withholding tax on profit on debt paid to non-resident persons with no permanent establishment in Pakistan is reduced to 10% under Clause 5A of Part II of the Second Schedule, against a benchmark rate of 15%.
Reduced tax liability	The tax otherwise payable is reduced by a specified percentage, benefiting a defined class of taxpayer.	Full-time teachers and researchers employed in recognised non-profit educational institutions are entitled to a 25% reduction in income tax payable on their salary income. (Clause 1(2) of Part III of the Second Schedule)
Tax deferral	The timing of a tax liability is shifted to a later period, providing an interest-free benefit to the taxpayer, even though the tax may ultimately be collected.	Contributions to Registered Pension Plans and Voluntary Pension System funds are deductible in the year of contribution; the tax on both contributions and investment income earned within the fund is deferred until withdrawal.

B. Sales Tax Expenditures

Type of Tax Expenditure	Description	Example from STA, 1990
Zero-rating of taxable supplies	Sales Tax is charged at a rate of zero on specified supplies. The supplier may claim input tax credits on inputs used to produce zero-rated goods, resulting in the full Sales Tax value chain being relieved of tax.	Supplies made to investors in the Gawadar Special Economic Zone, and related imports, are zero-rated under Serial 8 of the Fifth Schedule to the STA, 1990.
Exemption of supplies	Specified goods or services are exempt from Sales Tax. Unlike zero-rating, the supplier cannot claim input tax credits on inputs used to produce exempt goods; only the output Sales Tax is relieved.	Fertilizers other than DAP are exempt from Sales Tax under Serial 168 of the Sixth Schedule (Table I) to the STA, 1990. The tax expenditure is estimated after adjusting for the input tax not recoverable by the supplier.
Reduced rates on specified goods	A rate lower than the standard benchmark rate of 18% is applied to specified taxable goods.	Substances registered as drugs under the Drugs Act, 1976, and classifiable under Chapter 30 of the Pakistan Customs Tariff, are subject to Sales Tax at 1% under Serial 81 of the Eighth Schedule to the STA, 1990.
Exclusion from additional levy	Specified categories of importer are excluded from the minimum value addition tax imposed under the Twelfth Schedule to the STA, 1990.	Raw materials and intermediary goods imported by a manufacturer for in-house consumption are excluded from the 3% minimum value addition tax under Serial 2(I) of the Twelfth Schedule.

C. Customs Duty Expenditures

Type of Tax Expenditure	Description	Example from Customs Act, 1969
Full exemption from customs duty	All customs duty otherwise applicable on specified goods is remitted; the goods enter Pakistan at a zero effective duty rate.	Active pharmaceutical ingredients imported by the pharmaceutical manufacturing sector are fully exempt from customs duty under Part II of the Fifth Schedule to the Customs Act, 1969.
Reduced customs duty rate	A customs duty rate lower than the benchmark statutory rate is applied to specified goods or imports by specified categories of importer.	Electric vehicles and their CKD components attract reduced duty rates under Part V(A) and Part V(B) of the Fifth Schedule to the Customs Act, 1969, in place of the applicable standard tariff rate.
Sector-specific exemption through SRO	A Statutory Regulatory Order issued under Section 19 of the Customs Act, 1969, grants an exemption or concessionary rate to a specified sector, industry, or category of importer.	Original Equipment Manufacturers in the automotive sector are granted exemptions from customs duty on CKD imports under SRO 656(I)/2006, subject to conditions relating to local value addition.
Exemption in Special Economic Zones	Goods imported into or from Export Processing Zones, Gwadar Free Zone, and Special Economic Zones are wholly or partially exempt from customs duty to attract investment and facilitate export activity.	Machinery, equipment, and goods imported for use within the limits of Export Processing Zones are exempt from customs duty under heading 9917 of Chapter 99 of the First Schedule to the Customs Act, 1969.

2.4. Measurement of Overall Tax Expenditure

This section presents a detailed breakdown of the methodology used to assess and calculate tax expenditures for each category of tax. It provides an overview of the specific estimation approaches applied, thereby offering clarity on the underlying analytical framework and the basis for the reported estimates.

2.4.1. Measurement of Income Tax Expenditure

Income tax expenditure is estimated using data primarily obtained from income tax returns, supplemented by information collected directly from relevant entities and third-party sources. To compute the notional tax liability, statutory tax rates specified in the Finance Act 2024 are applied to incomes that are otherwise exempt or subject to preferential treatment, as reported by the respective taxpayers.

The provisions governing tax expenditures are contained in Part VII, Part IX, and Part X of Chapter III of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001, as well as Parts I to IV of the Second Schedule of the same Ordinance. These provisions define various exemptions and concessions available to individuals, associations of persons, companies, and other taxable entities under the law.

For entities reporting losses, the minimum tax rate of 1.25 percent is applied. For individuals, tax liability is determined in accordance with the applicable income tax slabs set out in the First Schedule of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001. For small and medium enterprises (SMEs) and other companies, an average effective tax rate of 24.5 percent is applied for estimation purposes.

In the case of reduced-rate regimes, tax expenditure is calculated as the difference between the tax liability computed at the standard statutory rate and the tax liability computed at the concessional or reduced rate. This differential is treated as the estimated tax expenditure for each relevant provision.

2.4.2. Measurement of Sales Tax Expenditure

Sales tax returns data have been utilized for the estimation of Sales Tax expenditures. The standard Sales Tax rate of 18 percent is applied as the benchmark for calculating tax expenditures. The difference between the actual Sales Tax paid and the tax liability computed at the benchmark rate is treated as revenue foregone arising from exemptions, concessions, or preferential treatments under the Sales Tax regime, after giving effect of adjustment factors.

In the case of certain luxury items, a higher Sales Tax rate of 25 percent was applicable during FY 2024–25. However, where the applied rate exceeds the benchmark rate, the resulting calculation yields a negative tax expenditure, reflecting an over-collection relative to the benchmark. Such negative tax expenditures are not included in the estimates presented in this report.

2.4.2.1. Measurement methodology under different types of Sales Tax concessions

a. Zero Rating

Zero-rating is applied at a rate of zero percent on specified goods and services. The relevant provisions governing zero-rated supplies are set out in Section 4 and the Fifth Schedule of the Sales Tax Act, 1990 (STA 1990). Zero-rated treatment is generally applied to goods that are outside the effective scope of Sales Tax by definition, such as exports, or to items specifically designated by the Government under exceptional circumstances, including national security considerations, natural disasters, food security requirements, or other urgent policy needs.

In addition, goods and services covered under bilateral or multilateral agreements may also be granted zero-rated status. The impact of zero-rating is significant in the estimation of Sales Tax expenditure, as it affects taxation throughout the value chain. Where a final product is zero-rated, the supplier is entitled to claim input tax adjustments. Accordingly, tax expenditure in such cases is estimated as the total Sales Tax that would have been payable on the final output value had the product not been zero-rated.

b. Exempt Supplies

Exemptions under the Sales Tax Act, 1990 (STA 1990) are provided in Section 13 and the Sixth Schedule of the Act. These exemptions may apply to both the local supply and import of goods. Similar to zero-rating, Sales Tax exemptions are granted by the Federal Government under specific circumstances, including national security considerations, natural disasters, national food security during emergencies, and the implementation of bilateral or multilateral agreements, typically through notifications issued in the official Gazette.

Such exemptions may apply to all or specific components of tax liability under the STA 1990. However, unlike zero-rated supplies, input tax paid on exempt goods cannot be adjusted against output tax. As a result, only the net output tax is foregone in the case of exempt items.

For the estimation of tax expenditure on exempt goods supplied locally, an adjustment is made to account for the Sales Tax embedded in the supply chain prior to the exempt transaction. Since suppliers of exempt goods are generally unable to recover input tax incurred on taxable inputs, a portion of the tax burden is already reflected in the final price of the exempt good. Applying Sales Tax to the full value of exempt supplies without accounting for this embedded taxation would therefore overstate the estimated revenue foregone. Accordingly, differentiated adjustment factors are applied to reflect broad differences in supply-chain characteristics and the extent of embedded taxation across categories of exempt goods. A thirty percent adjustment factor is applied to staple food commodities, basic agricultural inputs including fertilizers, pesticides and certified seeds, and other essential goods characterized by substantial upstream production, transportation, storage and distribution activity. A forty percent adjustment factor is applied to pharmaceutical products, medicines, medical devices and other healthcare-related supplies, reflecting the specialized manufacturing, regulatory compliance and controlled distribution networks associated with these sectors. All remaining locally supplied exempt goods are assigned a seventy percent adjustment factor. The adjustment factor applicable to each category is identified in the relevant entry in Appendix A.

In the case of imports, since no input tax is incurred, no adjustment for input tax is required, and the tax expenditure is estimated directly on the import value.

c. Reduced Rates

Under Section 3(2)(b) of the Sales Tax Act (STA) 1990, the Federal Government has the authority to declare that Sales Tax on certain taxable goods shall be charged, collected, and paid in a manner specified by the government, at a higher or lower rate as deemed necessary. When reduced rates are applied, the calculation of Sales Tax expenditure is based on the difference between the Sales Tax that would have been collected at the benchmark rate and the actual amount of Sales Tax received under the reduced rate. This difference represents the foregone revenue, which is considered as the Sales Tax expenditure.

d. Exclusions from levy of minimum value addition sales tax under 12th Schedule to STA 1990

The 12th Schedule to the Sales Tax Act (STA) 1990 outlines specific exclusions from the imposition of the 3% minimum value-added Sales Tax on commercial imports. For these excluded items, the Sales Tax expenditure is calculated by applying the 3% rate to the value of the imports. An exclusion applied to serial 2(I) exclusions for registered manufacturers importing good for in-house consumption; as described in Section 2.5.4 of this report, such exemptions do not give rise to a net revenue loss and are not included in the estimates. The resulting amount represents the revenue foregone by the government due to the exclusion from the Sales Tax levy.

2.4.3. Measurement of Tax Expenditure in Customs Duty

The estimates for calculation of Customs Duty Expenditure are calculated based on the statutory duty rates, utilizing the revenue foregone approach. Any deviation from the statutory rates is treated as a concession or exemption.

The classification of customs duty expenditure is provided under Chapter-99, Free Trade Agreements (FTAs) and Preferential Trade Agreements (PTAs), Fifth Schedule of the Customs Act 1969, as well as general concessions. These general concessions include exemptions granted under various Statutory Regulatory Orders (SROs) to sectors such as the automobile industry, exploration and production (E&P) sector, the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC), and export-oriented industries.

2.5. Interpretation framework

Several factors and challenges need to be assumed while understanding the estimation of tax expenditures, which should carefully be considered when interpreting the expenditure figures.

2.5.1. Behavioral responses

Behavioral responses from taxpayers are not accounted for while estimating the tax expenditures in this report. In this regard, an assumption is made that taxpayers will not alter their behavior in reaction to tax expenditures. Therefore, these estimates do not reflect any additional revenue that might be generated because of such behavioral changes.

2.5.2. Impact on economic activity

Relationship between tax expenditure and its cost estimate is often more "dynamic" than a simple, linear conversion into revenue. Removing a tax expenditure measure can have broader economic implications, particularly on the size of industries and the overall level of economic activity. In practice, people and businesses tend to take advantage of any discounts or exemptions offered to them. The withdrawal of a tax incentive in a particular industry might lead businesses to exit that sector or shift their operations to industries with more favorable tax conditions, ultimately resulting in a decline in revenue.

Additionally, the elimination of a specific tax expenditure could impact consumption levels, particularly if the good or service in question has "price-elastic demand." If the removal of tax relief increases the price of a good or service, consumers may reduce their consumption, leading to lower revenue collection than initially expected. In this way, the actual revenue outcome could be contrary to the anticipated increase, highlighting the complex and often unintended consequences of changing tax policies.

2.5.3. Individual Estimates Vs. Aggregate Tax Expenditure

Tax expenditures can be estimated independently for each specific tax expenditure provision, assuming that, all other tax provisions remain unchanged. Furthermore, many tax expenditure provisions are procedural in nature. In such cases, the tax revenue foregone under these provisions is often recouped at a later stage under different tax provisions.

Alternatively, tax expenditure can be calculated by excluding the amounts associated with procedural clauses, ensuring that only the true tax revenue foregone—resulting from provisions that directly impact tax collection—is accounted for. This method provides a more accurate representation of the actual cost of tax expenditures.

2.5.4. Compensation of tax expenditure through alternative levies

Tax expenditures may not fully reflect the actual revenue foregone by the government as a result of policy measures implemented through various tax laws. Governments have a range of tools and methods for collecting tax revenues and granting concessions. The revenue lost under a particular tax regime may not represent a complete loss, as the government could offset this shortfall through other forms of levies that may not fall strictly under the categories of tax or customs duty. Examples of such alternative revenue collection methods include development levies, surcharges, cesses, and other similar charges.

A further consideration arises in relation to the additional value addition tax imposed under the Twelfth Schedule of the STA, 1990. This schedule imposes a three percent minimum value addition tax on commercial imports. Where a person is registered under the STA, 1990, and imports goods for use as inputs in the production of taxable goods or services, the additional tax paid on such imports is recoverable through the input tax credit mechanism and does not represent a final tax cost to the importer. In such cases, the exemption from the Twelfth Schedule levy for registered manufacturers importing goods for in-house consumption does not give rise to a net revenue loss, since the levy itself would have been recovered through credits. The fiscal impact of such exemptions is accordingly noted separately and is not included in the main tax expenditure totals.

INTERNATIONAL EVIDENCE ON TAX EXPENDITURE

3.1. Global Average Revenue Foregone

Tax concessions serve as policy tools employed by governments for various socio-economic objectives. Generally, developed nations tend to allocate a larger percentage of their GDP towards tax expenditures compared to less developed countries as they are in better position as compared to underdeveloped countries and are willing to shift a good part of their resources towards tax relief and incentives for individuals and businesses.

According to the "Global Tax Expenditure Database," the data spanning from 2010 to 2025 (Figure 1) shows that the average global tax expenditure ranged between 3.7% and 4.9% of GDP. The global average for this period is 4.4%, indicating a consistent level of tax expenditure across different economies.

Note: Global average for 33 reporting countries rose from 3.6% of GDP in 2010 to 4.9% in 2025, reflecting both expansion in reporting country coverage and growth in nominal tax expenditure values. OECD average has remained relatively stable at approximately 4.9% over the period. Source: Global Tax Expenditure Database (gted.taxexpenditures.org). Note: Values are approximate based on published GTED aggregates.

3.2. OECD Countries

The tax expenditure estimates for OECD countries from 2011 to 2025 ranged between 4.5% and 4.9% of GDP. The Tax Expenditure as a percentage of GDP of OECD countries for FY 2025 (17 countries) stands at 4.9% (Figure 2).

Note: Values are approximate and sourced from published country reports.

3.3. Pakistan's Position

The tax expenditure estimates for Pakistan, as a percentage of GDP, are below the global average (Figure 3). For FY 2024-25, the global average across 33 countries stands at 4.9%, while Pakistan's estimate for the same year stands at 2.07% of GDP, reflecting both the design of the tax system and the refined benchmark methodology applied in this edition of the report.

Figure 4 illustrates Pakistan's tax expenditure as a percentage of GDP among a group of 10 comparable economies from 2011 to 2025. Among the sample countries, Türkiye has the lowest average tax expenditure at 0.46% of GDP, while Romania records the highest average at 4.18% over the 15-year period. The cumulative average for these countries stands at 2.31%. For FY 2024-25, Pakistan's estimate of 2.07% is broadly in line with the lower end of this peer group, reflecting a convergence with comparable developing economy norms as the benchmark methodology is progressively refined to align with international best practice.

TAX EXPENDITURE ESTIMATES

The total Tax Expenditure estimate for FY 2024-25 is Rs. 2,352.81 billion, which accounts for 2.07% of GDP and 20.04% of total tax collection by the FBR. A detailed breakdown by tax category is provided in Table 1 below. Sales Tax accounts for the largest share of tax expenditure at Rs. 1,273.98 billion (54.1% of total), followed by Income Tax at Rs. 579.70 billion (24.6%) and Customs Duty at Rs. 499.14 billion (21.3%).

Note: Sales Tax constitutes 54.1% of total federal tax expenditure (Rs. 1,273.98 billion), followed by Income Tax at 24.6% (Rs. 579.70 billion) and Customs Duty at 21.3% (Rs. 499.14 billion). Total: Rs. 2,352.81 billion.

In FY 2024-25, Sales Tax continues to account for the largest share of total federal tax expenditure at 54.1%, driven principally by reduced-rate treatment of pharmaceutical products and the exempt supply regime for food and agricultural inputs. Customs Duty expenditure decreased significantly, reflecting the reclassification of international trade agreement concessions and export input remissions as structural features of the customs duty base.

4.1. Income Tax Expenditure

The Income Tax Expenditure for FY 2024-25 is estimated at Rs. 579.70 billion (Table 2). This represents 24.6% of total federal tax expenditure and 0.51% of GDP. The estimate covers exemptions, tax credits, reduced rates, and deductible allowances that represent genuine departures from the benchmark income tax system as defined in Section 2.3 of this report. Income from government entities under Section 49, provincial government statutory funds, constitutional transitional arrangements, and procedural withholding provisions have been reclassified as structural benchmark elements and are excluded from this total.

4.2. Sales Tax Expenditure

The Sales Tax Expenditure for FY 2024-25 is estimated at Rs. 1,273.98 billion (Table 4), representing an increase of 3.0% compared to FY 2023-24. This expenditure represents 1.12% of GDP and constitutes 54.1% of total federal tax expenditure. The estimate reflects exemptions, reduced rates, and other concessions that are genuine policy-driven departures from the benchmark Sales Tax system. The benchmark excludes, among other items, supplies made in constitutionally transitional territories, international conveyance supplies subject to the destination principle, and obligations arising from international agreements, which are set out in Appendix C.

Tribal area exemptions reflect constitutionally mandated transitional arrangements following the Constitution (Twenty-fifth Amendment) Act, 2018. Both are classified as part of the benchmark system and hence not recorded as part of tax expenditures. See Appendix E for the complete framework.

5.5. Appendix E - Benchmark Framework and Estimation Methodology for Tax Expenditure Reporting

E.1 Purpose and Scope

This Appendix sets out the benchmark framework and estimation methodology applied in this edition of the Tax Expenditure Report. It provides a comprehensive reference for the principles used to determine which provisions of the Income Tax Ordinance, 2001 (ITO, 2001), the Sales Tax Act, 1990 (STA, 1990), and the Customs Act, 1969 are classified as tax expenditures and how their fiscal cost is estimated. The methodology described here is consistent with the standards for tax expenditure reporting issued by the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD), and reflects the practice of a growing number of countries that have adopted benchmark-based tax expenditure reporting as a component of fiscal transparency.

This Appendix should be read in conjunction with Section 2 (Scope and Methodology) of this report. Section 2 contains the benchmark definitions specific to each tax as prescribed by the relevant statute; this Appendix provides the underlying analytical framework and the reasoning that informs those definitions.

E.2 The Benchmark Approach

Tax expenditure reporting estimates the fiscal cost of provisions in the tax system that confer preferential treatment on specific taxpayers, transactions, sectors, or activities. The analytical starting point is a benchmark: the standard structure of the tax system in its most fundamental form. A tax expenditure is a provision that departs from this benchmark and reduces tax liability in a targeted manner.

This report adopts a benchmark-relative approach in which only genuine departures from the defined benchmark are classified as tax expenditures. This approach, followed by the IMF, the OECD, Canada, the United Kingdom, Australia, and most major reporting economies, avoids both overstating and understating the size of the tax expenditure system. Overstating occurs when structural features of the tax system, provisions that are constitutionally required, internationally obligated, or necessary to define a coherent tax, are incorrectly recorded as revenue foregone. Understating occurs when genuine policy preferences are omitted. The benchmark approach provides an objective, replicable basis for distinguishing between the two.

The benchmark for each of the three taxes covered in this report is defined by the following elements: the unit of taxation, the taxation period, the tax base, and the rate structure, together with provisions that are constitutionally required, internationally obligated, or necessary to prevent double taxation. A consolidated summary of each benchmark is set out in the table in Section E.3 below.

E.3 Benchmark Tax Systems — Summary

The following table sets out the key features of the benchmark for each tax. Elements listed in this table are not tax expenditures. They define the standard structure against which departures are measured.

Benchmark Element	Description
A. Income Tax — ITO, 2001
Unit of taxation	The person as defined under Section 2(42) of the ITO, 2001, including individuals, companies, and Associations of Persons, each assessed separately on taxable income.
Taxation period	The tax year 1 July to 30 June, with income taxed on an accrual basis.
Tax base	Income from all sources under Section 9 of the ITO, 2001: salary, property, business, capital gains, and other sources. Residents on worldwide income; non-residents on Pakistan-source income only.
Benchmark rates	Statutory rates under Schedule-1 of the ITO, 2001. An average effective rate of 24.5% for non-banking corporate entities and 39% for banking companies, consistent with the observed distribution of applicable rates. Rate variations within Schedule-1 are part of the benchmark.
Sovereign income — Section 49	The income of the Federal Government is exempt under Section 49 of the ITO, 2001. Provincial and Local Government income is exempt except for out-of-jurisdiction business income. This constitutional principle is part of the benchmark; Section 49 income is not a tax expenditure.
Avoidance of double taxation	Provisions preventing the same economic income from being taxed twice, including foreign tax credits (Section 103) and exemption of inter-corporate dividends, are part of the benchmark.
Constitutional arrangements	Agricultural income is outside the federal benchmark base. Transitional non-taxation in territories newly subject to federal law following constitutional amendment is constitutionally mandated, not discretionary.
International obligations	Exemptions under diplomatic conventions, UN agreements, and development assistance agreements are not tax expenditures. They are listed in Appendix C.
Loss carry-over	The carry-forward and carry-back of losses is a structural feature of income measurement and part of the benchmark.
B. Sales Tax — STA, 1990
Unit of taxation	The registered person making a taxable supply of goods or services in Pakistan.
Tax base — destination principle	All goods and services consumed within Pakistan. Exports and goods

Benchmark Element	Description
	consumed outside Pakistan are outside the benchmark base.
Exports and international supplies	Goods exported from Pakistan and supplies for consumption aboard international conveyances under Section 4(B) are outside the benchmark base. Their zero-rating or non-taxation is not a tax expenditure.
Financial instruments	Currency notes, banknotes, shares, stocks, and bonds are excluded from the Sales Tax base as a structural feature of consumption taxation. Their non-taxation is part of the benchmark.
Constitutional transition	Non-taxation of supplies in territories subject to constitutionally mandated transition under the Constitution (Twenty-fifth Amendment) Act, 2018, is not a tax expenditure.
International obligations	Exemptions for diplomatic missions, UN agencies, and privileged persons under international agreements are benchmark, consistent with Appendix C.
Benchmark rate	The standard rate of 18% under the STA, 1990.
Multi-stage credit system	The input tax credit mechanism is part of the benchmark. Provisions that give effect to this mechanism, including the exemption of registered manufacturers from the additional levy under the Twelfth Schedule, are not tax expenditures.
C. Customs Duty — Customs Act, 1969
Tax base	Goods imported into Pakistan for consumption in Pakistan. The benchmark does not extend to goods imported as inputs for goods subsequently exported.
Exports and export inputs	Customs duty remissions on inputs incorporated into exported goods are outside the customs duty base. They are not tax expenditures.
International trade agreements	Customs duty concessions under FTAs and PTAs are binding treaty obligations, not tax expenditures. Reported separately for transparency in Appendix C.
Benchmark rates	Statutory MFN tariff rates applicable during FY 2024-25, together with Regulatory Duty and Additional Customs Duty rates in continuous effect throughout the year.

E.4 Principles Governing Benchmark Classification

The following principles determine whether a provision falls within the benchmark (and is therefore excluded from the expenditure estimates) or constitutes a genuine tax expenditure.

E.4.1 Sovereign Immunity and Government Entity Income

Section 49 of the ITO, 2001 provides that the income of the Federal Government is exempt from income tax, and that the income of Provincial and Local Governments is exempt except for income from business carried on outside their jurisdictional areas. This provision gives effect to the constitutional principle that the sovereign authority does not tax its own income. The revenue attributable to Section 49 is therefore not a tax expenditure; it is a structural feature of the income tax system.

The same principle extends to entities that are extensions of sovereign government finance in substance: statutory pension funds and provident funds established by provincial legislation, whose assets represent accumulated government obligations to public sector employees; employees' social security institutions established by provincial statute with no private shareholders and no commercial purpose; and government-directed public funds established for national infrastructure or public welfare under statutory or judicial authority. The income of such entities is sovereign money managed under statutory obligation. It is treated as part of the benchmark for the purpose of this report.

In the context of Sales Tax and Customs Duty, no statutory provision equivalent to Section 49 exists in precisely the same form. However, the same constitutional principle applies: transactions in which the Federal or Provincial Government is the purchaser or recipient — including government imports under foreign capital assistance grants and goods received by government emergency authorities — do not give rise to a net revenue loss to the consolidated public account and are accordingly outside the scope of expenditure estimation.

E.4.2 Constitutional Arrangements

Certain features of the tax system are determined by the constitutional framework within which the system operates. These are part of the benchmark and are not tax expenditures.

Agricultural income is assigned to the provincial governments under the constitutional distribution of legislative powers and does not form part of the federal income tax base. The non-taxation of agricultural income at the federal level is a structural feature of the benchmark.

Following the Constitution (Twenty-fifth Amendment) Act, 2018, the former Federally Administered Tribal Areas came within the jurisdiction of federal tax laws for the first time. The constitutional amendment provided for a transitional period during which existing fiscal arrangements were maintained. The non-application of Income Tax and Sales Tax in these areas during the constitutionally mandated transition period is not a discretionary policy preference; it is constitutionally determined. The revenue attributable to this transitional non-taxation is not classified as a tax expenditure.

The fiscal arrangements applicable to Azad Jammu and Kashmir are governed by specific constitutional provisions. The non-application of certain federal taxes in AJK during specified periods reflects these arrangements and is part of the benchmark.

E.4.3 International Obligations

Pakistan is a party to bilateral and multilateral agreements that require the grant of tax exemptions or concessions to specified persons, organizations, or transactions. These obligations are part of the framework within which the tax system operates and are not subject to unilateral revision. They include obligations under the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations and the Vienna Convention on Consular Relations in respect of diplomatic missions and their personnel; the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations and related agreements in respect of United Nations agencies; and bilateral development assistance agreements that include an exemption commitment as a condition of the provision of grant financing.

For Customs Duty, the obligations arising from Free Trade Agreements and Preferential Trade Agreements to which Pakistan is a party are of the same character: they are binding international commitments, not domestic policy choices. Consistent with the treatment of international obligations applicable to Income Tax set out in Appendix C of this report, customs duty foregone under FTAs and PTAs is not classified as a tax expenditure. A comprehensive list of provisions excluded from all three taxes on international obligation grounds is provided in Appendix C.

E.4.4 Procedural Withholding Provisions

A number of provisions in the Second Schedule to the ITO, 2001 exempt specified persons or transactions from the operation of withholding tax mechanisms under Sections 148, 150, 151, 153, and related sections. Where such a provision affects only the timing and manner of collection, and the person concerned remains fully liable to income tax at the applicable rate, with that liability discharged through the return-filing and assessment process, no revenue is foregone. The tax is collected through a different mechanism at a later stage.

Provisions of this character are classified as procedural clauses and are listed in Appendix D of this report. The criterion for classification as procedural is that the exemption relates to the collection mechanism only, and that the person concerned remains subject to income tax on the relevant income or transaction without any reduction in the rate or quantum of tax otherwise applicable.

E.4.5 The Destination Principle

The benchmark for Sales Tax is founded on the destination principle: tax applies at the point of consumption within Pakistan. Goods and services consumed outside Pakistan are outside the benchmark base. Accordingly, goods supplied for consumption aboard conveyances proceeding to destinations outside Pakistan under Section 4(B) of the STA, 1990, and goods that are exported from Pakistan, are not subject to Sales Tax as a matter of benchmark definition. The zero-rating or non-taxation of such supplies is not a tax expenditure.

The same principle applies to Customs Duty. The customs duty benchmark applies to goods imported for consumption within Pakistan. Goods imported as inputs and incorporated into products subsequently exported are not consumed in Pakistan. Customs duty remissions, drawbacks, and exemptions on inputs used in export production reflect the outer boundary of the customs duty base rather than a departure from it. Such remissions are not classified as customs duty expenditures.

E.4.6 The Input Tax Credit Chain

The benchmark for Sales Tax provides that the tax is imposed using a multi-stage system under which registered businesses claim input tax credits to recover the Sales Tax paid on their taxable inputs, so that Sales Tax effectively applies only to the value added at each stage and is ultimately borne by the final consumer. Provisions that give effect to this mechanism do not represent revenue foregone; they are integral to how the benchmark Sales Tax operates.

In particular, the exemption of registered manufacturers from the additional three percent minimum value addition tax under the Twelfth Schedule to the STA, 1990, does not give rise to a net revenue loss. A registered manufacturer importing goods for in-house production pays Sales Tax on those imports at the standard benchmark rate and recovers it through the input tax credit mechanism. Application of the Twelfth Schedule's additional levy to such a manufacturer would create a recoverable advance payment, generating no net fiscal benefit. The exemption from this levy for registered manufacturers importing for in-house consumption is accordingly part of the benchmark and not a tax expenditure.

E.5 Estimation Methodology

E.5.1 Revenue Foregone Approach

The fiscal cost of each tax expenditure is estimated using the revenue foregone approach: the amount by which tax revenues are reduced due to the existence of a tax expenditure, assuming all other factors remain unchanged. This involves comparing the tax liability that would have arisen under the benchmark with the tax liability under the applicable provision, for the population of taxpayers affected.

For Income Tax, the estimates are based primarily on income tax return data, supplemented by third-party and administrative data where return data is insufficient. For Sales Tax, the estimates are based on sales tax return data and Goods Declarations relating to imports. For Customs Duty, the estimates are based on customs import data.

The estimates are static: they do not account for the behavioral responses that would follow from the removal of a tax expenditure (taxpayers altering transactions, exit from sectors, or investment reallocation), nor for the macroeconomic effects of policy changes on aggregate tax revenues. The revenue foregone estimates accordingly represent upper-bound estimates of the revenue that would be collected if a particular provision were eliminated.

E.5.2 Income Tax Benchmark Rates

The benchmark rates for Income Tax are the statutory rates prescribed in Schedule-1 of the ITO, 2001. For individual taxpayers, the applicable income tax slab rates are used. For entities reporting losses, the minimum tax rate of 1.25 percent under Section 113 of the ITO, 2001 is applied. For export income, the benchmark rate is 1 percent.

For corporate entities, two benchmark rates are applied. For banking companies, a composite rate of 39 percent is used, reflecting the statutory income tax rate for banking companies and the super tax applicable under Section 4C. For all non-banking companies, an average effective rate of 24.5 percent is used as the benchmark, reflecting the observed distribution of corporate income tax rates applicable to the non-banking corporate taxpayer population. This average rate is applied rather than the general statutory rate because the non-banking corporate population is subject to multiple distinct statutory rates across different sectors and sizes of enterprise.

Company income tax return data for Tax Year 2025 was examined to assess the empirical basis for the non-banking benchmark rate. The data shows net tax chargeable of approximately Rs. 1,676.8 billion against taxable income of Rs. 3,572.2 billion for non-banking companies, yielding a raw effective rate of 46.94 percent. This rate exceeds the statutory income tax rate because the minimum tax under Section 113 — which is levied at 1.25 percent of turnover regardless of profitability — constitutes a significant component of total tax chargeable for the non-banking corporate population. After separating the estimated minimum tax component (approximately Rs. 653.6 billion, derived as 1.25 percent of aggregate turnover of Rs. 52,286 billion), the residual income-tax-based effective rate is approximately 28.6 percent — consistent with the statutory income tax rate of 29 percent, given the mix of profitable and loss-making filers and differential rates across company types. The 24.5 percent benchmark rate used in this report is accordingly a conservative estimate. It does not overstate the benchmark.

E.5.3 Sales Tax Estimation: Adjustment Factors for Exempt Local Supplies

Under the Sales Tax system, suppliers of exempt goods are not required to charge output Sales Tax on their supplies. However, they are generally unable to claim input tax credits on Sales Tax paid on taxable inputs used in producing, processing, transporting, storing, or distributing those goods. As a result, part of the tax burden remains embedded within the supply chain and is reflected in the final price of the exempt product.

In estimating the revenue foregone arising from exemptions for locally supplied goods, an adjustment is therefore required to account for the fact that some Sales Tax has already been collected at upstream stages of production and distribution. The objective of the adjustment is to avoid overstating the tax expenditure by treating the entire exempt supply value as untaxed.

For this purpose, adjustment factors are applied to the gross value of exempt local supplies, after applying 18% tax rate to the gross value. These factors are intended to approximate differences in embedded taxation across supply chains and to reflect the varying extent to which tax has already been collected prior to the exempt transaction. Lower factors are applied to sectors where a relatively greater share of the tax burden is likely to have been borne and embedded at earlier stages of production and distribution, while high adjustment factors are applied to sector where a comparatively large portion of the potential tax expenditure is associated with the exempt transaction itself. For imported exempt goods, no such adjustment is applied because the tax expenditure arises directly at the import stage and is measured as the Sales Tax that would otherwise have been collected on the import stage.

This report applies differentiated value addition factors calibrated to the economic characteristics of each supply chain, as follows:

Tier	Tax Expenditure Adjustment Factor	Categories of Goods
Tier 1	30 percent	Staple food commodities and basic agricultural inputs, including fertilizers, pesticides, certified seeds, cereals, pulses, fruits, vegetables, livestock products, milk and other essential food items. These supply chains typically involve substantial upstream production, transportation, storage, packaging and distribution activities through which tax is already embedded prior to the exempt transaction. The 30 percent factor is intended to reflect the relatively high level of embedded taxation and the limited incremental tax that would arise at the exempt stage.
Tier 2	40 percent	Pharmaceutical products, medicines, medical devices, dialysis equipment, cardiology products and other healthcare-related supplies. These sectors involve specialized manufacturing, regulatory compliance, technical processing and controlled distribution networks that generate greater value addition than staple food commodities while still containing significant embedded taxation. The 40 percent factor is intended to reflect this intermediate position.
Tier 3	70 percent	All other locally supplied exempt goods for which no sector-specific adjustment is applied. This category continues to use the standard adjustment factor historically applied in previous editions of the report.

The assignment of adjustment factors is based on broad supply-chain characteristics. Tier 1 applies to staple food commodities and basic agricultural inputs, including fertilizers, pesticides, certified seeds, cereals, pulses, fruits, vegetables, livestock products, milk, and other essential food items. These sectors typically involve extensive upstream production, transportation, storage, and distribution activities through which tax is embedded prior to the exempt transaction. Accordingly, a 30 percent adjustment factor is applied.

Tier 2 applies to pharmaceutical products, medicines, medical devices, dialysis equipment, cardiology products, and other healthcare-related supplies. These sectors involve specialized manufacturing processes, regulatory compliance requirements, technical processing, and controlled distribution networks. While substantial embedded taxation exists within these supply chains, the structure of these sectors suggests a comparatively larger proportion of the potential tax expenditure is associated with the exempt transaction than is the case for staple food and agricultural supply chains. Accordingly, a 40 percent adjustment factor is applied.

Tier 3 applies to all remaining locally supplied exempt goods for which no sector-specific adjustment factor is prescribed. A 70 percent adjustment factor is applied to these categories in accordance with the methodology previously adopted in this report.

For the purpose of computation, exempt supplies are grouped according to the applicable tier and the corresponding adjustment factor is applied to the gross exempt supply value. The adjusted values are then aggregated to derive the estimated net Sales Tax expenditure associated with exemptions on locally supplied goods.

E.5.4 Customs Duty Estimation

Customs Duty expenditure is estimated by comparing the duty that would have been payable at the statutory benchmark rate with the duty actually paid under the applicable exemption or concessionary treatment. The benchmark rates are the statutory Most Favoured Nation tariff rates applicable during FY 2024-25, together with Regulatory Duty and Additional Customs Duty rates that were in continuous effect throughout the fiscal year. Exemptions or concessions arising from international trade agreements, and remissions on inputs for export production, are excluded from the expenditure estimates on the grounds described in Section E.4 above.

E.6 Interaction of Tax Expenditures

The fiscal cost of individual tax expenditures is estimated independently for each provision, assuming that all other tax provisions remain unchanged. The sum of individually estimated tax expenditures may not accurately represent the total cost of eliminating all tax expenditures simultaneously, for two principal reasons.

First, the income tax rate structure is progressive: the combined effect of multiple deductions and exemptions may reduce a taxpayer's taxable income to a lower bracket than would apply if all concessions were absent, so that the independent estimates understate the combined cost. Second, tax expenditures interact with each other: some provisions create benefits only in the presence of other provisions (such as the interaction between pension income splitting and the pension income credit), so that independently estimated costs may reflect an element of double-counting when aggregated.

These interactions are not reflected in the individual estimates presented in this report. The reported figures should accordingly be read as approximate measures of the fiscal cost of individual provisions rather than as precise projections of the revenue that would be collected in the absence of all tax expenditures simultaneously.

E.7 Limitations

The estimates presented in this report are subject to the following limitations, which should be borne in mind when interpreting the figures.

- Behavioral responses: The estimates do not account for changes in taxpayer behavior that would follow from the withdrawal of a tax expenditure. Taxpayers may restructure transactions, reduce activity, or shift to alternative instruments in response to increased tax liability. The revenue foregone estimates accordingly overstate the revenue that would actually be collected if a provision were eliminated.
- Economic activity effects: The estimates do not account for the macroeconomic effects of tax expenditures on investment, output, employment, and aggregate tax revenues. A tax expenditure that stimulates economic activity may generate additional tax revenue that partially offsets its direct cost; conversely, its elimination may reduce activity and curtail the expected revenue gain.
- Data limitations: For certain provisions, particularly those governing complex financial transactions, the available data do not permit precise quantification of the taxpayer population and income affected. In such cases, estimates may rely on supplementary data from third-party sources, administrative data, or historical trends.
- Boundary determination: The determination of which provisions form part of the benchmark and which are tax expenditures requires judgement, particularly at the margins. This report applies the principles described in Section E.4 consistently, but alternative reasonable interpretations of the benchmark are possible for some provisions. Where a provision is close to the boundary, this is noted in the relevant appendix entry.
- Non-additivity: As noted in Section E.6, individual estimates are not additive due to the interaction of provisions and the progressive rate structure.

These limitations are common to tax expenditure reporting across all major jurisdictions and are acknowledged as inherent features of the revenue foregone methodology by the IMF, the OECD, and other international bodies. They do not undermine the value of the estimates as indicators of the relative magnitude of individual tax expenditures and as a basis for comparative analysis over time.

5.6. Appendix F – Data Sources

The estimates for tax expenditures related to Sales Tax and Customs Duty are derived from data obtained from the FBR's official database (PRAL). However, when it comes to estimating Income Tax expenditure, the data available from FBR's database, specifically from income tax returns, has certain limitations and is not sufficient for accurately calculating tax expenditures. To address this, additional data was requested from FBR's field formations. In many instances, data was also sourced from various third-party organizations. PREFACE

The Public Sector Development Programme (PSDP) serves as a key operational instrument for mobilizing indigenous and foreign resources to stimulate various sectors of the economy. It reflects the Government's commitment to achieving the objectives set under national development frameworks, ensuring balanced, equitable, inclusive, and sustainable growth in line with 13th Five Year Plan as well as URAAN Pakistan and 5Es strategy: Exports, E-Pakistan, Environment, Energy & Infrastructure, and Equity & Empowerment.

The National Economic Council (NEC) approved the National Development Outlay for fiscal year 2026–27 at Rs 3,675 billion reflecting the Government's continued prioritization of development spending despite fiscal constraints. The outlay comprises Federal PSDP at Rs 1,000 billion, Provincial Annual Development Programs (ADPs) at Rs 2,224 billion, and reported development spending by State-Owned Enterprises (SOEs) at Rs 451 billion, collectively representing a coordinated national effort to accelerate economic growth and development.

PSDP 2026–27 has been formulated in a resource-constrained environment characterized by fiscal discipline, while maintaining a strong focus on high-impact development priorities. The existing portfolio, with a substantial throw-forward liability, underscores the need for prudent project selection, efficient resource allocation, and timely completion of ongoing schemes to enhance development effectiveness. Therefore, a strict control on inclusion of new schemes has been maintained through adopting selection criteria and alignment with the strategic needs of the country.

The PSDP 2026–27 portfolio has been carefully aligned with the strategic pillars of URAAN Pakistan. The projects aimed at enhancing productivity, focusing on digital transformation through investments in IT infrastructure and creating an AI environment along with those related with the regional connectivity and contributing in energy and water security have been prioritized. The completion of critical infrastructure projects has also been targeted through providing adequate resources within the available fiscal space. Further the deficient segments of the society have been provided equity & empowerment through expanding quality education under the Daanish School initiative and allocating more funds to higher education as compared to the last year.

Recognizing the development needs of special areas, adequate allocations while remaining within fiscal constraints, have been made for Azad Jammu & Kashmir, Gilgit-Baltistan, and Newly Merged Districts of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa. These allocations support their respective Annual Development Programs, formulated in accordance with regional priorities to ensure inclusive and equitable development.

I would like to express my sincere gratitude to Professor Ahsan Iqbal, Minister for Planning, Development & Special Initiatives / Deputy Chairman, Planning Commission, for his visionary leadership and guidance throughout the PSDP formulation process. I also extend my appreciation to the dedicated teams within the Ministry as well Planning Commission for their tireless efforts. Finally, I acknowledge the valuable cooperation of federal ministries, provincial governments, and area administrations in finalizing this document.
